SAPAR STATION (N. T. retreated toward old Mexico by way of Galeyville, with General Forsythe and nine companies of U. S. cavalry in hot pursuit. The Indians retreated southward through the Animas valley in New Mexico. They were pursued for thirty miles across the Mexican for thirty miles across the Mexican border and close to the Hannas river in Mexica, when about 250 Mexican senger went to Dr. Hart's and left troops belonginging to Gen. Terasas command, were concealed in a small willow-fringed creek, a tributary to the Hannas river. The Indians, una ware of the ambush into which they were being driven, fell into the trap. The Mexicans lay perfectly quiet until the Indians were within a hundred yards of them, and then poured in a sudden and murderous fire. The destruction was almost complete. The judge also acquitted Dr. Hart of the alleged persecution spite in the matter, and also put in a good word for Chief Field, expressing it as his opinion that he did what was doubtless his duty under the information which he had received and as the facts appeared on the surface.

There is no doubt the entire band will be exterminated. The Mexicans are flushed with victory, exultant, and will be exterminated. The Mexicans are flushed with victory, exultant, and with a sfiendish as the Indians them selves. They declare they do not intend to take a solitary Indian prisoner, but will follow them to their holes and wipe out the last one of them, in that section, at least, off the face of the earth.
